The Fox River Corridor Plan was inspired by recently completed subarea plans for the Villages of Algonquin and Carpentersville, both of which included recommendations to enhance recreational use of and access to the Fox River and the Fox River Trail. The plan will focus on safe walking and bicycling connections along the riverfront, connections to regional trails and open space, access to water-based recreation and environmental resources, and water quality. Brian Daly will present on the project, including key findings from the existing conditions analysis and potential recommendations.

The Illinois Department of Transportation, with input and assistance from CDOT, recently completed construction of a pilot project to design and build curb-protected bike lanes (or cycle tracks) along Clybourn Avenue and Division Street on the city's near northwest side. Other than a short segment within Douglas Park, this project represents the city's first barrier-protected cycle track. IDOT and CDOT collaborated on the project, which is located along state routes, and includes bicycle signals, landscaping, and intersection improvements.
