Tax burden by income level from the motor fuel tax or a motor fuel sales tax, as a percentage of annual household income

Note: Hypothetical household income levels were determined using 2007-11 American Community Survey median household income (MHI) data by township for northeastern Illinois. The highest MHI for a township in the region was $144,670, while the lowest MHI for a township in the region was $42,753. The middle income level on the chart, $93,712, is the midpoint between these two income levels.

Source: Chicago Metropolitan Agency for Planning analysis.