

Community Alliance

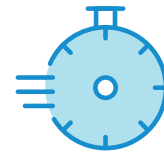

for Regional Equity

How might we achieve more equitable outcomes and opportunities across the Chicagoland region?

The Community Alliance for Regional Equity is a pilot program supported by the Chicago Metropolitan Agency for Planning (CMAP) to cultivate partnerships with community-based organizations that represent communities traditionally excluded from transportation planning.

The goal of the Community Alliance is to make CMAP's investment processes fairer and strengthen communities with more holistic collaboration.

After working with non-profit leaders from across the region, we have designed a program with four key priorities:

Accelerate transportation and safety issues

Elevate local, on-the-ground issue and project priorities

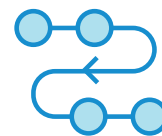

Contribute to regional decision-making processes

Funding priorities, large-scale infrastructure capital investments, technical assistance support

Collaborate in engagement and planning tools

Best practices, engagement strategies, and data sharing

Reflect and shape the alliance's processes and outcomes

Regular exchange, feedback, and learning opportunities to improve the engagement experience
