- 6.0 Mobilitics tool (Dalia Leven)
Transportation is facing a number of revolutions, many of them fueled by advancements in communications and automation technologies. These technologies, coupled with changes in transportation business models, users preferences, and behavioral trends have the potential to dramatically reshape the transportation landscape. Considering how these trends and technologies will play out over time as they are absorbed into the market place is a complex and highly uncertain process, dependent on how residents adapt their behaviors to accommodate and use these new options. AECOM has developed Mobilitics, a Scenario Planning tool that allows cities, regions, and others to test different assumptions about the future to gain a clearer understanding of how these technologies could impact their communities. We will provide a brief overview of the tool's capabilities and some of its primary uses in a planning context.
